One was of a rough, old unpainted house Moss-grown, and time worn, and small, With little low windows, o'erhung with vines Which clambered over the wall.

There was one tree shaded it; that one stood By the window towards the West, And within its branches so gnarled and old A robin had built its nest.

Twas a life-like picture, and after all There was something pleased the eye, And though you would say 'twas a simple Yet you could not pass it by.

The other was by the same hand, you'd It might be with less of skill;

Down just at its foot was a running stream. And willows bent o'er it low, Were cloud-wreaths like drifts of snow.

And these were the pictures in rustic frames. The pictures both hanging there; They were pretty and neat, but looked so
